INDIAN DAYS - A hot sun shining on a mountain meadow and the beat of Indian drums made the wind-up program for "Indian Days", sponsored by the Crows Nest Pass Recreation Board Playground program group an interesting and exciting event.

Week-long activities at the playgrounds in the Crows Nest Pass towns saw the young people making Indian costumes, Indian teepees, Indian head-dresses and studying Indian culture in preparation for the big event held at the Hillcrest playgrounds August 7.

Highlight of the afternoon was a demonstration of Indian dances, presented by Martin Healy Head and Bill Mistaken Chief, who were dressed in full regalia while Chief of the Blood Indian Tribe at Cardston, Phil Mistaken Chief, provided the drum beat.

Chief Mistaken Chief, who is also recreation director of the Blood Reserve, showed numerous Indian relics and narrated a history of each item.

During the ceremonies the two ceremonial dancers, dressed in full eagle head-dress regalia, picked one of the young people to take part in a mock ceremony, showing the procedure of installing a new chief. Bill Fields of Coleman was selected for this honor, and after having had his face properly marked with Indian colors, Bill Mistaken Chief did the honors by placing a true eagle feather head-dress on excited Bill Fields.

Refreshments for everyone were provided by the Hillcrest Playgrounds group.

SAFEST DRIVERS? THE AGED!

Old age brings enough problems without society adding others for no good reason.

It has long been assumed by many traffic safety officials and insurance companies as well as most laymen that advanced years brought decreased ability to drive a car safely. The older driver was a hazard, who needed to be re-examined after he passed a certain age and perhaps be restricted.

A massive study has demolished this myth entirely.

Sponsored by the University of Denver and the Administration on Aging of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the study examined the records of drivers in 30 states and the District of Columbia. This was not a sampling but a study of the TOTAL driver population in the 31 jurisdictions for which data was available.

It was found that:

- Although senior drivers (65 and over) represented 7.4 per cent of all drivers in the states surveyed, they were involved in only 4.8 per cent of accidents.
- Senior drivers averaged 37 per cent fewer accidents than would exist if their proportion of accidents were in exact ratio to their proportion of the driving population.
- Senior drivers averaged lowest of all age groups in frequency of injury-producing accidents — 40 per cent below their proportionate share of the driving population.
- In only one category — fatality-causing accidents — was the senior driver's average just slightly lower than their proportionate total of the driving population. This is explained by the fact that older persons are less able to recover from injuries than younger ones.
- But their fatal accident record was still 7 per cent less than could be statistically expected.
- In state after state, senior drivers had the lowest accident involvement record of all age groups, and the larger their share of the population, the better their record seemed to be.

In Minnesota, for example, where senior drivers represented 12.28 per cent of the driving public (highest of any state surveyed), they are on record with the best accident-avoidance performance of any age group.

The senior driver "is almost error-free with respect to some of the most disastrous driving errors," says Judge Sherman G. Finsilver, who headed the study.

"Speeding, drunk driving, and 'tailgating' are accident-producing causes, or errors, of which senior drivers are almost never guilty."

AOA Commissioner William Bechill hails the study as "a break-through which hopefully . . . will lead to a cessation of arbitrary practices and attitudes directed to older drivers and ultimately create fairer, more enlightened, practices in licensing and insuring of older drivers."

CAMPFIRE DAYS — The hooting of a distant owl and the wail of a lonely coyote lent to the atmosphere and excitement of the overnight camp enjoyed by 15 Coleman young people in Star Creek Valley last week.

The event was one of three overnight camps sponsored by the Crows Nest Pass Recreation Board playground program, and was attended by children ages eight years and up.

The Hillcrest Camp was attended by 20 young people and the Bellevue Camp by 15 children. The camps were organized by camping directors Sam Marr of Blairmore and Linda Hakon of Hillcrest.

The camp program included hiking to the selected camp site, building the camp ground, construction of lean-to and food storage area, orientation course in trail blazing, camp craft and cooking over an open fire.

LABOUR DAY MESSAGE - 1969

Labour Day, 1969, gives us the opportunity to pause and reflect on our achievements over the past year and to evaluate the present. It also occasions a moment to pay tribute to the contribution of the working men and women of Alberta, to the growth and development of our Province.

This year Labour Day carries with it a double significance. It was ten years ago today that the Alberta Department of Labour first took its place as a separate Government Department and this year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the International Labour Organization (I.L.O.)

Since 1919 the I.L.O. with its motto "Poverty anywhere constitutes a danger to prosperity everywhere" as its masthead, has been striving toward the goal of peace through social justice for all working men and women throughout the world.

During the past ten years the keystone which has guided my staff and myself was our belief in the concept that people are always a paramount consideration. There is no aspect of my Department's work that is not concerned with people, with people as individuals, and with the organization that represents them. There is not a single one of our activities that does not depend for its success on tolerance, understanding and good will between people.

The philosophy of tripartite communication will be retained by the Department of Labour with the steadfast hope for the continued support and co-operation of both labour and management. This has been the basic key to the long history of Industrial Harmony in our province, and looking to the future, we in the Department have dedicated ourselves to maintaining this climate of co-operative responsibility, which has become a tradition in Alberta.

On looking back, Albertans can view a year of continuing progress and can be reassured that prospects for the future look bright on the horizon. The progressive policies of the Department, the administration's interpretation of its role in society and the cooperative responsibility of organized labor and management are responsible.

sible for our outstanding record of achievement. In our opinion we exist not simply to settle strikes, but to prevent them. We exist to eliminate any discrimination in employment practices.

We exist to provide a medium for communication; so essential in industrial relations today. To effectively perform these functions the Department is firmly convinced that a policy of consultation must be confined by all parties concerned. In this manner, union and management can keep up a continuing dialogue on their joint problems and mutual interests, thereby preserving Industrial Peace.

We are now standing on the threshold of the most exciting era in the history of modern man. In the past few decades giant strides have been made. A short time ago it was not believed possible to leave our Earth, much less land a man on the moon.

However, the recent flight, and the subsequent Lunar landing and Moonwalk, has completely dispelled all skepticism as to the capabilities of man. The key has been cut and inserted into the lock. The door has now been opened wide to reveal a wealth of riches. All this because of the ingenuity and inventiveness of MAN. This atmosphere of technological advancement holds unlimited promise for the future, and bespeaks well for the world of Tomorrow, if man can learn to apply his full talents to the welfare of human relations and understanding.

The Alberta Department of Labour will not be left behind in this Age of Progress. We intend to advance to new and greater heights, and with your continued support I am confident this vision can be realized.

R. Reiverson,
Alberta Minister of Labour.

Migratory Birds Regulations for 1969

OTTAWA — Bag limits for ducks in the Prairie Provinces have been increased, but limits elsewhere are largely unchanged, according to the 1969 Migratory Birds Regulations, released recently by the Canadian Wildlife Service, Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development.

Daily bag limits on ducks in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have been set at seven, seven and eight respectively.

Last year's limits were five, five and eight. In addition, the hunting season for ducks and other species will open one week earlier in most areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The mallard limit has been increased to four per day in Manitoba and southeastern Saskatchewan, five per day in southwestern and northern Saskatchewan, and in eastern Alberta, and eight per day in western Alberta.

These increases are based on improved conditions in the prairie pothole breeding areas. Biologists believe that waterfowl habitat is recovering from the low water levels of recent years, and over much of the prairies is now in better condition than at any time since the mid-1950's.

In British Columbia, Northwest and Yukon Territories, and eastern Canada, bag limits and season lengths are largely unchanged.

However, in southern Quebec and central Ontario the season has been delayed one week to protect locally reared black ducks.

Because numbers of breeding pairs of canvasback and redhead ducks remain low, restrictions have been tightened. Ontario and Manitoba hunters may take only one canvasback or redhead duck per day; Saskatchewan hunters may take only one canvasback per day.

Some changes have been made in hunting areas. Southern Saskatchewan has been rezoned to reduce the number of hunting districts. In Quebec two small areas have been closed to hunting, one near Montmagny, and the other on National Defence property in Yamasca and Nicolet counties.

Purpose of the closures is to protect greater snow geese and local black ducks, respectively.

An abstract of the migratory game bird hunting regulations will be mailed in mid-August to the 385,000 hunters who bought a Canada migratory game bird hunting permit last year.

New hunters may obtain the regulations from their provincial game departments or offices of the Canadian Wildlife Service. Posters of the regulations will be displayed in post offices.

When hunting or transporting migratory game birds, all hunters must carry on their person a valid Canada migratory game bird hunting permit in addition to any required provincial permit. These may be purchased at post offices for $2.00.

What is the role of The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society? Founded in 1949, the Society is the sole national voluntarily supported agency working to solve the problem of arthritis, a leading cause of disability in Canada.

Production Creates Wealth

THAT'S WHY it is good business policy to encourage and support local industry. THE MORE people there are employed locally, the more home-owners there are, the more benefit there will be for everyone.

PEOPLE EMPLOYED locally pay taxes -- they buy from local stores -- they help to create business.

BUSINESS is not a one-way street -- it is built by co-operation, good will and a progressive outlook.

BUY FROM stores that make every effort to serve you by buying goods and services advertised in the

The Purposes of Agricultural Fairs:

It's fair time again!
"So what?" is the apathetic reply of many in the community.
Others seem too intent on a first prize win and nothing else.
I feel it's time we look at the objectives of an agricultural fair.

The real value of such fairs can be best measured by their educational features, as outlined in the following points. Their purpose then, is:

- (1) To encourage high standard of workmanship and to aid in teaching proper methods of performance.
- (2) To encourage more efficient use of products in the home.
- (3) To encourage originality.
- (4) To encourage production of goods that will make homes more attractive.
- (5) To encourage homemakers to adopt new and better methods.
- (6) To teach the value of high standards as a factor in marketability of products.

From The Judge's Point of View:

I would like to point out a few of the things we look for when judging handicraft and needle-work articles.

General Appearance:

First impressions, as you all know, are very important. When you have over a hundred articles to go through, you soon eliminate the poorly pressed or soiled articles. Also, trim all the loose threads; remove all basting and markings.

Good Design:

Design is very important. Poorly chosen color combinations and unattractive use of trim can spell doom for even the most skillfully constructed article. How does your article rate against this checklist?

- 1-is the design simple + just enough to beautify and give the article the appearance of completion?
- 2-is the design adapted in size and shape to the size and shape of the article? For example, small design on small articles; circular designs on a round article.
- 3-is the design in keeping with the structural lines of the article?
- 4-Have you attempted to duplicate nature or a painting in your handwork? This is seldom successful and the true beauty of nature becomes distorted and lost in the process. Instead use a design suggested by nature but simplify it to produce a stylized design.
- 5-is the design in keeping with the function of the article? Will it require special attention when laundering the article?
- 6-Have you used too many intense colors in your article?

This is a very common mistake and is often found in designs applied with liquid embroidery. Personally I don't mind if you use five colors as long as only one is an intense color. It is very difficult to combine many colors successfully and unless you are very skilled at it, limit yourself to three or less.

Worship:

This, of course, is one of the more important considerations and constitutes anywhere from 25 to 70 per cent of the points in judging. Generally we check whether seams and hems are on the straight of the material; is the stitching straight and even and is everything carefully finished? Correctness of stitch, evenness and tension are important considerations when judging knitting and crocheting.

It's hard to be a judge — remember that different judges have different preferences but we try our best to standardize our judging.

Vacation In The Forest

From colony to nation, the development of her forests has largely determined and been responsible for the direction and extent of Canada's growth.

So today, and on every day of the year, four million dollars in new wealth flows from our forest industries. One half of this new wealth is in pulp and paper which goes to all corners of the world and is our leading export.

Of the wealth created by all the basic sources of Canadian production — agriculture, forests, fisheries, trapping and mining — the forests produce at least a quarter.

Tourists visiting Canada are keen to enjoy our woods, our waters, our wildlife. A pleased tourist broadcasts our attractions to a score of friends. He also broadcasts what he doesn't like: burning forests, smoky skies, scenic wonders turned to ashes. Treat the tourist as your country's guest. Give him green woodlands, rippling waters, leafy trails — without the blemish of forest fire.

Car owners get wonderful fun every summer out of packing the family into the car with a picnic lunch and whizzing off to the country. Well, it is good fun for city dwellers to get out into the woods.

However, many drivers are still throwing cigarette butts out of their car windows as they drive. These glowing butts have started many fires along country roadsides and all too often these little roadside blazes have been whipped up by a wind and turned into raging forest fires.

It's because of apathy and indifference on the part of the people, that seven out of 10 forest fires are caused by human carelessness. It's time to snap out of it! And to be as careful with fire in the woods as we are with it in our own homes.

June Statistics

If everyone had worn the safety belts they sat on during June, perhaps ten, or as many as twenty lives might have been saved in Alberta traffic accidents, the Alberta Safety Council believes.

June was bad news for Alberta motorists, with a record 43 deaths in the province's traffic — three more than the previous record for June, set in 1962.

However, because of a much better fatality record during the previous five months, this is still about five per cent below the toll for the same date last year.

Mr. R. P. Lawrence, general manager of the Alberta Safety Council, is concerned with the public's apathy which surrounds safety belts.

"Putting your safety belt on every time you get into your car is the most positive thing you can do to protect yourself from injury or death in a traffic accident. Yet we know that only about 19 per cent of those Albertans with safety belts in their cars ever bother to put them on," Mr. Lawrence stated.

He quoted a study of 26,000 accidents by a leading European auto manufacturer which shows that people get killed in car accidents at speeds as low as 12 miles per hour. "This message has not yet reached the public," Mr. Lawrence stated.

During June there were a total of 4300 accidents, compared with 3610 last year. There were also 1019 reported injuries in these accidents compared with 1012 last June. Accidents continue to run almost 20 per cent ahead of last year.

Edmonton had five deaths in June, compared with two in June of 1962. Calgary had three deaths reported. Their respective totals at the end of six months were 13 and 12 compared with 17 and 16 by the same date last year.

Letter to the Editor

Blairmore, Alberta,
August 12, 1969.

The Editor,
The Coleman Journal,
Coleman, Alberta.

Dear Sir:
Re Mr. Lougheed's letter on compulsory Medicare, Coleman Journal, August 6th, 1969.

While one must commend Mr. Lougheed on his political dexterity, Mr. Lougheed's comments regarding Alberta Medicare, are at best, irresponsible if not deliberately misleading.

In the first instance it should be pointed out that Mr. Lougheed and his colleagues supported the existing legislation without any attempt to amend any part of it including the $100 fine for not registering. Thus, Mr. Lougheed and his party are officially on record as favoring the present legislation and the public should be informed accordingly.

Secondly, any attempt to compare the situation in Alberta and British Columbia is completely misleading. British Columbia has the major portion of its population concentrated in the highly industrialized area of the lower mainland and the island. Because of this concentration of population most people were already covered under some existing medical plan and so the British Columbia government was able to achieve 90 per cent in coverage throughout the province by merely incorporating existing medical plans into the British Columbia Medical Care system.

Any suggestions that the independent farmer and businessman can be led weekly into Medicare in the same manner as British Columbia organized labor has been, can only be taken as a deliberate effort to mislead the public—or a statement made out of political ignorance.

Since we had just slightly under 90 per cent population coverage under the old system, it is impossible to imagine that simply giving the government a monopoly on medical insurance would have increased enrolment up to the level of 95 per cent required by federal legislation. Thus, compliance with federal terms meant compulsion—compulsion officially supported by the Alberta Conservative Party. It is therefore amusing to see Mr. Lougheed now back-tracking from the stand long taken by the Social

Credit Government — of adequate medical coverage regardless of ability to pay on a voluntary basis;

a position that the Federal Government refused to recognize and a fact that the Provincial Government has been forced to recognize.
